My Mother

Her dark brown hair is kept neat and either curled or crimped. Her sapphire eyes twinkle in the sunlight. From her pink lips she corrects what needs to be corrected and teaches what needs to be taught. Her bright smile is always inviting to see when the days are long and tiring. She holds her posture with pride and elegance. Her tan complexion exhibits a radiant glow of her motherly love. She dresses in beautiful clothing of prismatic colors.

Calluses and creases in her gentle hands display her hardworking character. She is admired for her morality and self-determination. She is a friend when needed most: she is my mother.

She gives all of her time and adoration towards others; always encouraging whenever she advises. The tenderness within displays how much she cares for her family. When we are afraid she is sitting there beside us. When we are ill, she is waiting on us day and night. My Mother spends her time helping me study and memorize my schoolwork. She slaves over the stove to give us a delicious hot meal. She keeps the house clean and organized even when we mess it up. Silly jokes that she tells bring smiles to our faces. When trying to put off our schoolwork, she will quote, "Don't put off until tomorrow what can be done today", to change our minds. She molds us every day to be who we are and not like someone else. She does every little task yet may never be appreciated as she should be. In years to come, I will look back on the things that she did, and the ways she influenced my life. To a stranger she is a person, to a relative she is the authority over us, but to me she is more than just that. She is loving, kind, funny, hardworking, generous, and one of a kind: she is my mother.
