

Chad Bronson Lewis

August 24, 1973 - May 30, 2025

Chad Bronson Lewis, 51, of Marion County, Florida, passed away on May 30, 2025, in Ocala, Florida.

Born in Fort Lauderdale to Helen Lopez Lardino and Clarence Barry Lewis, Chad grew up with a strong spirit and a heart full of grit. He attended North Marion High School and later earned his GED in 1992—proof of his determination to keep pushing forward and making his own way.

Chad spent much of his career as a drill supervisor, working hard for Mastec and Fishel. He was a man who took pride in providing for his family, always making sure their needs—and even their wants—were taken care of. He was the kind of person who filled a room with laughter, light, and just the right dose of mischief. Chad never missed a chance to enjoy life—he was always chasing the next good time, whether it was out hunting, casting a line at his favorite fishing spot, or kicking back with a cold beer and good company.

He leaves behind a family who adored him: his daughter, Ashlyn Lewis; his son, Colin Lewis (Ashley); and his precious granddaughter, Aleia Lewis, who brought him so much joy.

Chad is reunited in peace with his mother, Helen Lopez Lardino; his uncles, Melvin and Frank Lopez; and his cousin, Robert Lopez.

A visitation will be held on Tuesday, June 10, 2025, from 10:00 AM to 2:00 PM at Roberts of Ocala – Downtown Chapel, 606 SW 2nd Ave, Ocala, Florida 34471. A Celebration of Life Service will begin at 12:30 PM.

Chad will be remembered for his larger-than-life personality, unwavering work ethic, and the way he made those around him laugh—often when they needed it most. His stories, his love, and his legacy will live on in the hearts of all who knew and loved him.

“ A Note from His Former Spouse

Though we were no longer together, we shared over 30 years of life and 28 years of marriage. We raised two incredible children, and through all the ups and downs, we built a family. Life wasn't always easy for us—but somehow, we made it through.

Our children are heartbroken. His passing has left a space that can't be filled. Despite everything, we were family, and that connection never truly goes away.

I will always be grateful for the years we shared and the life we created together. I hope he has found peace now. May his memory live on through the love of his children and the people whose lives he touched.

Always, Barbi

“ In Loving Memory of My Son-in-Law

It's hard to find the right words when someone you've loved and known for so long leaves this world. My son-in-law was not just a part of our family—he was family, from the beginning and always. For 28 years, he and my daughter built a life together. Through all the ups and downs, they raised two beautiful children who carry parts of him in their hearts, their smiles, and their spirits.

Time and life have a way of changing things. People grow, circumstances shift, and sometimes we drift apart. But no amount of time or distance ever changed how much I cared for him. I always loved him. I always will. That love doesn't end with absence, or with death—it simply takes on a quieter form, held in memories, in the lives he touched, and in the hearts that ache because he's gone.

He was a father, a partner, and a presence in our family for nearly three decades. I'll always remember the laughter he brought into our lives, the way he cared for his children, and the years we shared as family. He mattered. He always will.

Now that he's no longer with us, I can only hope and pray that he has found peace—that he's in a place where pain no longer reaches, and where his spirit is free. Whatever you believe about what comes after this life, I choose to believe he is somewhere better, watching over his children, still loving them as fiercely as he did when he was here.

Goodbye doesn't feel like the right word, because love doesn't end. But I will say this: Thank you for being a part of our lives, Chad! Thank you for the time, the love, and the memories. You will be missed, but you will not be forgotten.

*With love,
Mary*

“ A Farewell to the Brother Who Was Once Family

You married into our family and, over time, became a true brother—not just in name, but in the way you shared life with us. You were there for the laughs, the holidays, the tough moments, and everything in between. And even though things have changed, it doesn't erase the years of memories we shared.

Life doesn't always follow the path we expect. Families shift, relationships evolve, and sometimes we have to say goodbye to people who once felt like permanent fixtures in our lives.

So this is a bittersweet farewell—not angry, not cold, just honest. Thank you for the time you spent with us. Thank you for loving one of our own. Thank you for taking part in the creation of two beautiful children - who will stumble without you. Thank you for giving extra attention you gave to Clay when he needed it most. Thank you for the moments that mattered.

I'll think of you often—and especially on those Sundays when our teams play each other. Go Pats! And from now on , I'll root for your team (just a tiny bit)... in your honor. Just don't expect me to convert to a Dolphin fan!

As we say goodbye, we carry with us the warmth of your spirit and the mark you left on each of our lives. This isn't just a farewell—it's a thank you, from the bottom of our hearts, for being part of our family and loving us as your own.

You'll always be my brother, and you'll always be missed.

“ I remember one time he asked me to drive and he had no idea how i drove. He was a calm driver, i was not . Honestly, all I can remember is him holding onto the handle that's on the roof of the car telling me that I will never drive again and it was the funniest thing ever, and I will never forget that he was such an amazing man, the best man in the world if you ask me
