“ As I sit here with great saddness in my heart Reminiscing about my grandfather. I am reminded how very blessed I am to have had such a wonderful man in my life as well as in my children's lives. He bought me my first bike when I was 5 although he left the teaching part up to my mother. He taught me how to shoot a gun even though he said it was for boys, but I think he just would tell me that to ruffle my feathers. I always would brag about how Awesomely talented grandad was when it came to playing instruments. I was always so Envious of that talent. Knowing that the days of hearing him play for me are gone is breaking my heart. Obviously I can't write all of my memories down because I could write book. But he was the only grandfather I ever had and now the Void that's in my heart will be there Indefinitely. When I was a little girl and he would give me a kiss and hug bye I would giggle because of how his wiskers would feel on my cheek I only wish I could get one more hug, one more goodbye. ♡♡♡
