Rishie was beloved in the community by many because of his caringness and heartwarming smile. Rishie had an unmatched work ethic and was an avid fisherman in his free time. He loved his family with all of his heart. When diagnosed with diabetes several years ago, Rishie remained dedicated to his job and optimistic that he would beat the complications of his illness. Rishie remained brave, even during his final week in the hospital.

Rishie is survived by his wife, three children, six grandchildren as well as his brothers, sister; sister in laws; brother in laws and numerous nieces and nephews. His famous quote to those dear to him "What you gonna do, life is short and we all just passing through, live everyday."
