“ Brian, I only met your mother one time -when she came to school one day and taught your classmates and Mrs. Rucker and me how to do flower arrangements. That was such a pleasant experience for all of us and I thought about how generous she was to give her time and talent. I was so sorry to read of her passing and I miss seeing you at Sav-A-Lot. God bless you. Mrs. Schomp

“ Liz, I have known you for so many years, I'll always remember the times together at the Coffeehouse or parties and playing games at your home. I will especially remember this past year as we have fought this breast cancer battle together. I promise you I will continue to battle and will win for both of us. I can't thank you enough for all your input and support and I am so grateful to have had a part in supporting you. I just wish we could celebrate together as we planned--when my treatments are done I promise to celebrate for us both. I miss you so, so much already. RIP my friend. Always remembered / never forgotten...can't wait to see you again healthy and happy in God's Glorious home. Love you my friend. MER

“ To Brian Keller, You have come a long way and been through many trials and tribulations in your life. You have become a caring, strong man with an amazing sense of humor. Death is always one more trial that we go through in life and it seems desolate. I assure you Brian it is not. You may not see the light at the end of this darkness, but Jesus promises that your light will shine brighter than before, for now you will be stronger. We will pray for angels to wrap their wings of love around you during your journey. Our deepest condolences, Rachel & Dominic M/

“ Brian, your mom has been an inspiration to all of us in the way she handled all the challenges of her illness. Her sense of humor and her faith were unflagging. She always spoke about her Guardian Angels, and now she's your own personal Guardian Angel who will always be by your side. May all your wonderful memories and special moments with her bring you comfort and peace and lots of smiles.

“ I knew Liz for over 40 years. Liz was a great person and always willing to lend a helping hand even when she needed help herself. Always had a kind word for everyone. She will be truly missed but now she is not in pain and again with her parents (and Elvis - oh how Liz loved that man) ;-)
