“ Dearest Judy and Family: Words fail me, as I try to explain how much your father, grandfather and great grandfather meant to me. He was a friend, a teacher and a supporter. He was an idol. As a novice writer, Homer offered me advise and encouragement that helped me make a career and life in the outdoor industry. He often wrote notes, on his wonderful blue reporter-notebook-sized stationary. I cherished every one, and kept most. I look back at them often. Unc was a rare man - a man all should aspire to emulate. His smile, his kindness, his talent, his genuine interest. He was one of a kind. I like to think my father, also a friend of Homer's, met him at The Gate with a couple of fishing rods and jug of sassafras tea in hand. I am so deeply sorry for your loss. I pray for you during this difficult time. As Homer lives in your hearts, know he also lives through the hearts and lives of the thousands of others he touched so deeply.
