“ Losing a child is the most difficult thing a parent could ever go through, my heart and deepest condolences goes out to the Harris family, we never understand why things like this happen, but know that one day you will be reunited with that precious angel who knows he was loved. I know its easier said than done but I know one day you will pull through this and that you are surrounded by friends and family who love you during this time. although we know lil hunter is gone but he will never be forgotten
