“ I saw her just over a year ago, right before she fell ill. We went to lunch and she wouldn't let me pay. I promised her I'd pay next time. When she started having her health issues, I'd remind her that she has to get better because I still owe her lunch. I guess I still owe her. Miss you, Joycie.

“ Lunch time was the best time Michelle Carol and Joyce and myself would meet in the back of Graybar and crochet blankets we were called the Hookers . Joyce taught me a lot on how to crochet she was patient and very funny Miss you my friend. I hope your are teaching a lot of ladies how to crochet in heaven 😍😍

I also remember napping during lunch while you gals were crocheting away. "Sleeping with the hookers." I miss all of you ladies, but especially Joyce. She was one of the first people at Graybar that I became friends with.

I will miss her infectious laugh! I am so blessed to have known her. I still have some training notes written in her hand helping me along the way at my desk. I have fond movie nights out with the crew that included Michelle, Joyce and others. I know she is loudly laughing it up in heaven and others smile.

I will always remember Joyce from my time at Graybar she was a dedicated person at work, but she was also sweet and special human being, always willing to help, she used to say, don't worry, I got you, anytime that I had an issue with any of my orders, her laugh was contagious and will be always missed.
