“ I was lucky enough to know Mal in the 70's, when he was in full swing, being himself unapologetically. I lived in his Malverne, NY basement apartment with my cat - who he spoiled by giving him expensive cold cuts! He was the photographer at my niece's wedding. He introduced me to Pickles Pub and I went to his Blue Eyes nightclub grand opening. He was a fun, generous human being. I'm glad so many people shared their memories of him, proof he will be missed.

“ I have known Mal, since I was a teenager in Long Island. White Castle hangout at night, we all met there. Student Prince was a bar in Baldwin,, also the Downstairs in Rockville Center. Mal was a bouncer there., Not one to mess with! So many memories thru the years. Life was so simple then. Years and life separated us, but he was a good father, and grandfather. May he be sitting on a rainbow, dancing among the stars, looking at the most beautiful gardens in heaven, free of pain at last. You will be missed be many Family and Friends

“ Big Daddy was one of the god guys. His heart was huge. He lived life his way, with no regrets. He always new where to eat. He will be missed dearly. Mal would always listen. When he gave advice or constructive critisim, he was usually right. He never would tell you a lie when he did so. Mal always had your best interest at heart if he loved you. And if he loved you, you were better off for it. To some, who really did not know better, his heart was closed off. But to those he brought in under his huge wings, his heart was warm. I condiser myself very fortunate to have had Big Daddy in my life.I will miss his advice and conversation. I will miss his racism. I will miss his generosity. I will miss his love. I will miss Malcolm. Shuggs was kind to dogs. You could really witness his love watching him with his dogs. From his shepherd to lovey.A dog person is a special person. And again Mal was special. Big Daddy was old school. If he had your back, he had your back. He would go to the mattresses for you.God, I will miss himMal raised good children. Joie and Gregory are great human beings and Malcolm was so proud of them and their children. He would always tell me about their successes and life experiences. When he did, he glowed. Malcolm, you did good. There is so much more i could say. But those in his life know already.Malcolm, I love you and am sorry.
