“ Treasia I know how painful it is to have your mom pass away from your physical, touching, seeing, be with her life you two have shared. Your love for each other, though remains constant and I believe the love continues and sometimes for me anyways it seems like it grows stronger as you recalls all the memories you hold in your heart and mind. Our faith teaches us that we will see our loved ones again and everyone will be happy and healthy and it will be a great celebration in heaven. This is her time, , her celebration of being with Jesus and all the rest. I encourage you through your sadness and emptiness to be happy for her and still talk to her as she is fully alive and will be comforting you in your tears. Sending heartfelt prayers for you and Dave and everyone.
