“ When my son called me the day Patricia was called home, he said he was having a bad day. I said me too for Ms. Pat went to have coffee with Grandma. He paused said, "your day is harder than mine but that explains a lot." I asked what he meant. You see he works at a museum and wears a white dress shirt and light gray dress slacks. As he got out of the car to go to his shift, a step from the car he dropped his coffee and the lid popped off causing coffee to fly upward toward the sky and covering him in the process. The boss called my son a few minutes later to ask if he was alright because on video my sun was just starting at the sky looking upset. He then says well at least I know they enjoyed their coffee. She loved her coffee!!!

I'm not good with words but I'll try to speak from my heart. I hope you know how much I loved you and always will Aunt Pat Pat. I'm still in shock that you are no longer with us. I'll never forget your smile and laugh. I picture you in Heaven with all your loved ones. I see you with your brothers and sisters, one of them being my mom, sitting around happy and healthy drinking y'all's coffee. The ones still on earth are heartbroken, miss you and love you more than you know. I lost a wonderful Aunt that I have so many fond memories of growing up. I love you and miss you but one day we'll see each other again. Rest in Peace

Love your niece Tammy
