“ The things I will remember most about Uncle Phil are his love of God, family, country, sports, and western movies.

Even in the last months of his battle with Parkinson's, he would come to church with a smile on his face, stand for prayer and hold his Bible.

He attended all the birthday parties for his great nieces and nephews (even though they were loud and crowded) and he enjoyed watching the kids play. His love and devotion for his wife was undeniable and unending. He loved her so much he even opened up his home to 20+ members of Aunt Karen's side of the family for one of our famous "sister trips." I remember Aunt Karen and Uncle Phil came to visit me when I was in college in my first apartment. I served him sweet tea which he graciously choked down even though it was way too sweet 🍯🍯.

He proudly served his country for many years and kept up with politics.

It was pretty common to find him lounging on the couch enjoying football or a western movie at the end of a family gathering, or on a lazy day at home.

Uncle Phil led an admirable life. Even though his last couple of years were challenging as his disease progressed, he always wanted to be as independent as possible. He kept a positive attitude and gave every day his very best. He was a very good example of perseverance and integrity, which I will always look up to.

I will miss you Uncle Phil and I am forever grateful for the legacy you left behind and the life lessons I learned from you.

Love Always

“ Memories of Phill always make us smile. He has a great sense of humor and quick comeback. And open for most any outing or activity that his wife would suggest.

Like the time we all dressed as The Who family in honor of a sister in laws 60th birthday. The joke however was the sister in law was sick and could not make it, so there we were The Who family dining in Fanning Spring, Florida at the Lighthouse Restaurant. We had such a fun time and giggled the entire evening.

We will our friend and fellow prankster.

“ Phil wrote his obit several years ago. Why he omitted was that he loved his family deeply, as a brother, a father, and my dear friend and husband. He was a valiant man of courage. He fought a battle with the highs and lows of Parkinson’s and Progressive Supranuclear Palsy for over eleven years. But now his victory is won, his journey on earth ended while his new journey began in heaven. Like he used to say when he chose to step up on the sidewalk rather than using the handicap ramp with his walker, “I took the scenic route.” His suffering was just a scenic route home, where there’s a forever sunrise in the presence of God’s glory. No more suffering for Phil, no more tears “and God will wipe every tear from their eyes.”

Phil and I started our Air Force careers together as chapel managers back in the late 70's. We shared a great deal together about family, life and kids. He knew I was a huge Nebraska Husker fan and I knew he loved his Michigan Wolverines. But that never mattered because we liked to hang together, play golf and did some fishing. Even though we were separated when assignments took us to different parts of the US we always kept in contact. We knew what it was like to serve in the Air Force as a Chaplain Assistants and took our work and faith seriously. One of my greatest joys was to serve with Phil when I later became a Protestant Chaplain and had a tour at Hurlburt field in the 90's. Hurlburt was his last base he served as a senior enlisted. Florida would become his home and whenever I would come to serve at Hurlburt wd would get together. He was a good friend and wonderful person and I will always remember him as a gentle loving and caring person. So Phil, I know you are in good hands now and Gods got you working on something great!
