“ Dearest Robert, I miss you so much and our calls we used to make to each other at least once a day. I miss hearing your voice as much as I miss hearing Amanda's voice.

I'm sure that she was there to cross you over, to be by her side because you were the love of her life. She never loved anybody like she loved you. God made you two and then he matched you two..... Then he took both of you home to be by his side. I am so heartbroken at the loss of you and Amanda.

I think you know how much the children and I miss you and love you deeply.

Until our path meets again.... Night night our little man.

We love you

“ For me it will always be Piru ❤️
I was just a little girl when you were born. You were so tiny that I wasn't allowed to carry you right away. I remember the bottle you used to drink from. It looked like a tube. Wow I was actually a titi and not even eight years old. We grew up in the same era and enjoyed a lot of the same things. What i remember most as you were growing up was that amazing smile and how your eyes lit up. It was so cute and also mischievous at times. That infectious smile and light in your eyes you kept throughout your life. Although life brought you so many challenges, you kept pushing forward. How I wish life here on earth would've been better for you. I thank God you are no longer suffering and I thank him for bringing you Amanda so that you could experience real love and happiness. I will always keep you in my heart. Que dios te bendiga. Love always, titi Maria ❤️

“ I met Rob at a show i put together with Murder My Sweet on it. He came up to me and said he wanted to help me book shows. His demeanour was so infectious and invited. like how could you say no to him. In time we formed Lovesicndying and we poured our heart and souls into that band. In time he became one of my best friends. We drifted apart for a bit and came back and formed Nation of Decay. that is when we really clicked in regards to writing and being closer friends.

WE both loved food , although i hated coconut but he loved it. always tried to get me to eat it. We watched Walking Dead together, having lunches together and just generally hang out as friends. we started talking again last year but he moved away so we couldnt reconnect in person.

I wish we had more time, one more chance to feel that joy in writing and doing music.

my condolences to his family on thier loss. May god guide them through,

Rob, you can rest now my friend. Ill see you on the other side “ Absolutely heart broken to hear of Robs passing. I met Rob when I was 16 and a senior in high school when our 2 bands began playing shows with each other. Rob and I just had a connection from the moment we met and talked about music outside of a venue in Port St. Lucie. We instantly became best friends and were together almost every day hanging out, writing songs, and just enjoying life. Rob was an inspiration to me in my formative years of playing live. He had a deep passion for music and that was a lot of the glue that held us together. I was lucky to play in a few projects with Rob, and really got to know Bobby as he would go on to manage our band. Later on we both ended up taking different paths in life and lost touch for many years. We ended up connecting again a few years back via social media and when we would write each other it was as if no time had passed. He was an extremely funny person and had me and everyone surrounding him cracking up. My favorite thing he used to do would be calling his parents. Not the call itself, but the way he greeted them on the call. “Bendicion, whadda you doin” in his thick New York accent. anytime we spoke we would say that when one of us answered the phone. This greeting actually garnered him a nickname that I called him from that day forth. “Bendy”. I was lucky enough to talk to Rob a few weeks back when reaching out to give him my condolences on his fiancés passing. I’m grateful we had that chance to speak. I’m gonna miss you bendy. You leaving us really took a piece of my heart and I’ll love you forever. Do great things in heaven and give my Mom a kiss for me because I know she’ll be right there waiting for you. My deepest sympathies to Bobby, Lillian, & the rest of his family. God bless you Rob. Until we meet again my friend.
