“ She was a great person and life will hard with out her. She was one of the nicest persons I knew. I heard so many funny storys about her, and I was lucky to have 11 years with her. When I found out about her death I was deavastated. I was mad most of that day. The day she died my grandmother Barbara came over and she seemed ok. She also died the day her brother and sister came and I heard she was dressed really nice. Whil we have been cleaning out her house for the last few days and I look at her chair that she would sit in and I would just picture her still siting there saying what are you doing. Life without her has been hard because at our family reunion the day after she died we all shared good or funny memories of her, and it seems like she had a good life and my mom said that she was complete and happy with her life. She knew every kid that lived in my coldasack, and like me and my brothers called her they would call her GG too. My life will be a little tough without her because she told me so many storys that were very interesting. So I think she was one of the greatest grandomothers of all time.

“ Mom would have been thrilled to see all of us having so much fun at Thanksgiving. That alone was the greatest memorial we could have given her.

“ In life you only get one mother. I had the best Mom a son could wish for. I will miss our phone conversations and sharing jokes and laughter. I Love You Mom

“ We shared so much and had so many things in common. We finished each others sentences and laughed when we did. She was so excited about seeing her sister and brother and looking forward to getting together with family for Thanksgiving. It was a beautiful tribute to her memory and her life.
