“ Dear Mommy, You are with the Lord now. I'm so glad you accepted Jesus into you heart and that I will see you again. I miss you so much. Life is very different with you not in it. I miss you phone calls and you cooking our Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners and the family time we always spent together, cutting your hair whenever I came up to see you, watching you open your Christmas gifts we all bought for you, but most of all I will miss all the hugs and kisses you gave me. Rest in peace and enjoy you spiritual life in heaven. I will see you soon. I love you, Mommy XOXO

“ My dear grandma, now you are gone and all that remains are the wonderful gifts you shared and my memories of all the fun times we had together. You have given me the gift of making people smile with delight by serving them a beautifully cooked meal, the gift of knowing that family is always so precious and is our first concern, you have shown me the gift of perseverance and how to endure life's many struggles. I will cherish all the happy memories we had laughing together, our chuckling as we kept fun little secrets, all the shopping sprees and garage sales. Grandma, I miss you so much already but I will rejoice and have great comfort knowing you are at peace with Jesus and that I will see you again. So until then, I will pass on the many precious gifts you've shared, the joyful times we had, and always see your loving smile. I love you Grandma!
Heather.

“ Alongside Sabrina, I had the beautiful opportunity to spend the last several days at Sonja's bedside. It truly was an honor for every thing we did. In addition, it was a great bonding time for "Sam" and I. We laughed, cried, held each other, shared stories. We spoke as if we were being overheard by Sonja. WE wanted her to be included in our talks. She really was a remarkable woman and will be missed by her family and friends. Her ability to always be herself was a trademark. She loved life and met it headlong. She was strong until her last few breaths. Her love for my father, Ray, was as strong as his love for her. I have heard about so many of their special times and I know she has left a huge hole in his life. Dear, dear Sonja, you will be missed. Finally...peace.
