“ Dear Steve.....I'm sorry I didn't say goodbye in person while I was there looking at you, I just didn't feel right asking to speak to you alone. I was asked to write about what you ment to me and how you influenced me. So here it is, you were and will always be the person I felt the most accepted around. You spoke to me with no prejudice and if you ever had a bad thought to say you never made it noticable and I appreciate that. You were a big influence in my life. I learned so much from you! Like how coffee is as acceptable at 9am as it is at 9pm! And that not everyone has to agree with what you do with your life as long as you're happy. That's the biggest thing for me. I'm so concerned with what others think of me I never give thought as to why I care. Everytime I feel judged I think of you and the wonderful colorful life you lived without a care and I can only hope to be that happy and joyous in the desicions I make. I hate that I can't have one more cup of coffee,one last smoke, one last dinner of spaghetti with you. I'm sorry we didn't visit as much as we'd like I hope you understand. I love you Steven as unconditionally as you loved all of us and life itself. You were and always will be a big part of mine and my children's life. An amazing human gone sooner than we expected. I'll miss you forever. Thank you for everything. I can't seem to say that enough....thank you

“ As I sit here pondering on the memories of my grandfather, I remember so many funny and just amazing stories. Grandpa had a way about him, he didnt judge people but was very blunt and to the point, everything I know about respecting someone for who they truly are I learned from him. He had no fear either and was not afraid to speak his mind whether you liked it or not. If you know me at all you know that I dream of change and want to do so many things, often I would go to my grandpa for advice on new ideas or thoughts. Even if he thought it was silly he would give me his opinion and then say go for it. Maybe I am wrong, I dont know but you will never know unless you try. He thought the world of his grand kids. I dont think we could ever do wrong in his eyes, we were perfect in our own unique ways. I know I could have went to him with anything, and he would always come back with some smartass comment, some ideas of his own but finally his blessing. He lived an eventful life and I truly hope I can just amount to half the man my grandfather thought I was.

“Dad i will miss you , you gave the absolute best hugs. A few thing come to mind when i reflect on my time with you such as you were rarely judgmental and i thank you for that. You would always listen when i needed you to, i could call when i really needed someone to talk to and you never disappointed. You taught me to be strong and independent. You showed me that even though life is not fair it was ok to carry on, infact my favorite quote from you that i use often is " whoever told you that life was fair lied to you" and you said it often. I wish i had took more opportunities to spend time with you, this has made me relize how important it is to do so. You helped make me the woman i am today and i thank you for that. You will be missed dad, i love you

“My dad showed me that we should always be true to who we are. He always knew how to push me to do my best. I remember I had a home swim meet at Grand Blanc he told me it would be great if I got first place.. I got on the starting block and kept thinking I need to be first..I got on the starting block and never looked for other swimmers..I just wanted to finish 50 yards and touch that wall...and see myself in first place...I did it..I broke 30 seconds and came in first...he always knew how to get the best out of me...I'll never forget that moment..I love you Dad.You'll always be in my heart..Love Israel Anderson
