“ . "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble." (Psalm 46:1) God will give you the strength you need to get through each day. And on days when you feel you just cant go another step, God will carry you. God will also be your refuge. A place you can go and just hide in him. He will embrace you with his everlasting arms. He will be your safe place. You may not feel like it every day, but you will get through this. Not because of strength you have, because some days you are well aware that you have none. But because the one who holds you is almighty, all powerful, the King of Kings and Lord of Lords. God will be your strength and your comfort in your time of grief. You are in our hearts and prayers. Kathleen Munder-Sequeira and family.
