“ There is a hole in my heart.....Life on earth is just a very brief moment compared to our soul's immortal existence,... some just go sooner than others... when you die is irrelevant....What you do with the time that you have down here is what really matter... Getting to be with you was a lifetime of love... You taught me more than you could ever know....I just want to say thanks...thank you...you showed me that life is not long enough and to short no to appreciate the people around you...Thank you for setting the standars high and showing me that a man should show his wife nothing but love and respect...for showing me (us), what is like to truly love someone....you were that man that would give your shirt off your back and empty your wallet for someone that needed a meal or shoes on their feet...thanks...thank you... You were a great man, great husband (I know the years you were together, were te best of her life)...and the best father someone can ever have... R.I.P William Bubenheimer.
